

Summer Reads 2018

BOOKS TO READ UNDER THE SUN

PURPOSE BEN RENSHAW

“During a recent long flight, I was glancing through this book primarily as preparation for meetings with Japanese publishers. But I found myself rereading large parts because it is such an engaging and relevant book. I am glad we published it!”

Martin Liu, Publisher

POSITIVE NUTRITION KATE COOK

“Refreshing down-to-earth, informative and interesting. An empowering read to live life to the full.”

Niki Mullin, Business Development Director

ELEANOR OLIPHANT IS COMPLETELY FINE GAIL HONEYMAN

“Heartbreaking and heartwarming at the same time. Superb characterisation, you feel like you’ve known them for years. A real page turner that I couldn’t put down.”

Niki Mullin, Business Development Director

LEADING FROM BEHIND

DIRK DEVOS, MANON DE WIT, ROBERT LUBBERDING

“A ground-breaking guidebook on transformational leadership for every leader seeking to unlock the hidden potential in their team – and get the best from everyone, everywhere, anytime.”

Maria Cid, Communications Manager

A TIME OF LOVE AND TARTAN ALEXANDER MCCALL SMITH

“I quickly fell in love with both the characters and the warmly amusing world McCall has created, which sees the continued antics of a hapless group of neighbours. It’s the kind of book that makes you feel instantly lighter as you navigate the ups and downs of life with old friends.”

Liz Cooley, Assistant Editor

THE INSIRATORIUM ANTHONY TASGAL

“This is not your average business book but is more of a eclectic mix of stories that hopes to spark new thought processes and ideas as you read. The stories are short and sweet, enabling you to pick it up and put it down whenever you’re in need of a good distraction.”

Liz Cooley, Assistant Editor

POUR ME: A LIFE A.A. GILL

“A. A. Gill was many things – a travel writer, food critic, television reviewer, artist, cook, addict. In his memoir, he begins in a rehab facility and takes the reader on a journey back and forth through his childhood, art school, discovering his love of cooking, and his struggle with alcoholism. This book will stay with you long after you finish it.”

Charlotte Reynard, Events & Marketing Executive

CIRCE MADELINE MILLER

“A re-imagined mythical tale of the Greek, often misjudged, sun-goddess, Circe. From her emotionally-abused childhood, exile, and discovery of power, Miller delivers a beautiful tragedy that is magical, romantic, and rebellious.”

Natasha Tsakiris, Publicist

